Dear Ms. Goode:

I am writing to express my concern about the erosion of civil rights that the new Title 6 Guidance would encourage. Corporations that want to put industrial facilities in places where there are high concentrations of these facilities to begin with, and where most of the residents are very poor and can't afford to move, must not be allowed to trample the civil rights of these people. I urge you to revise the new Title 6 Guidance to ensure that the civil rights of poor Americans are not sacrificed for the short term profit of corporations.

Sincerely,
Les Judd
